

Welcome! Who are we?

Sara Salitan-Thiell, LCSWR
School Social Worker
North Colonie Central Schools
sarasalitan-thiell@ncolonie.org

Frank Macri
Superintendent
Duanesburg Central School District
fmacri@duanesburg.org

What do we know?

- Systemic change in an urban, high needs high school with an alarming rise in suicidality among the student body
- Training staff
- The simple act of talking about suicide can reduce risk
- Putting a protocol together in your school that everyone clearly understands reduces risk and increases community responsibility
- Partnering with local resources helps school personnel access evidence based approaches

A few more thoughts about...

- Use a reliable tool and train your clinical staff in that model
- Make sure your clinical staff can tag each other in and out: self care!
- School social workers, counselors, psychologists...don't forget to include your administrators in the process
- Let's talk about our model...

Questions?

Don't hesitate to reach out to either of us!